Society

Monday.
W. R. C.—G. A. R. Hall.

OMNIA SOMNIA— Dawn drives the dreams away, yet some abide
Once, in a tide of pale and sun-
less weather,
I dreamed I wandered on a bare hillside,
When suddenly the birds sang all together.

Still it was winter, even in the dream;
There was no leaf nor bud nor young grass springing;
The skies shone cold above the frost-
bound stream;
It was not spring, and yet the birds were singing.

Blackbird and thrush and plaintive
willow-wren, Chaffinch and lark and linnet, all
were calling;
A golden web of music held me then,
Innumerable voices, rising, falling.

O, never do the birds of April sing
More sweet than in that dream I still remember:
Perchance the heart may keep its songs of spring
Even through the wintry dream of life's December.
—Rosamund Marriott Watson.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Table Linen.
Table linen should be ironed in a single thickness until it is perfectly dry, then it may be folded and pressed.

Wear Washable Gown.
When cooking or doing housework
it is advisable to wear a washable gown, and to have enough of these so you can always appear neat and fresh.

Bread and Biscuits.
If bread or biscuits have become hard, dip them in cold water for a few minutes, then place in a moderately hot oven until well heated.
They will taste perfectly fresh.

Keep Olives Fresh.
When olives are left over, pour a little water over them, and olive oil over that. The oil will keep out the air and they will keep for some time.

Choose Food Yourself.
Choose all perishable articles like tomatoes, lettuce and berries yourself.
If you are merely going to read an order off to a clerk you might quite as well do it by telephone as to go in person.

Use Potato Slices.
If the fat gets too hot before you are ready to use it for deep frying, put in a few slices of raw sliced potatoes to bring down the temperature.

Prevents Accumulation.
Wash your cleaning cloths and dry them after each using, then you will not accumulate soiled ones.

ENTERTAINED FEW FRIENDS AT DINNER—
Mr. and Mrs. George Miller entertained a few friends at dinner Thursday evening at their home east of town. A watermelon party was enjoyed later in the evening, a number of neighbors arriving for the treat.

USED DISTINCTIVELY— Fur is used very distinctively this season. Instead of the bands that are generally seen are triangles and disks of fur used like embroidery.

Aluminum Egg and Beet Slicer
Cuts hard boiled
eggs in thin slices at one stroke. Formerly
$1.25. Now 75c.

Mrs. Brown, Dept. Inspector Entertained

Mrs. Matilda Brown, Dept. Inspector of the Ladies of the G. A. R., entertained the Ladies of Dixon Circle
No. 73, on Thursday at her hospitable home in Rock Falls.

The spacious rooms at the Brown home were gay with great masses of beautiful gladioli and dahlias.

Mrs. Emma Petre of Dixon also presented the hostess with a beautiful cluster of Shasta daisies.

At noon a delicious picnic dinner was enjoyed by about forty guests.

During the afternoon 500 was enjoyed by some and music, fancy work and chat by others.

The guests on returning to their homes late in the afternoon, all voted
Mrs. Brown a charming hostess. Mrs.
Charles, sister of Mrs. Brown, was a guest from Rock Island.

MILLIONS OF GLADIOLI
IN ONE FIELD—

Many visitors have called of late at the gladioli farm of Roy Shelly, located on the banks of Rock river, near the Nelson bridge. His Riverside farm is a wonderful sight with its 800,000 bulbs, and as each bears about half a dozen blossoms there are several million blooms in the field. Mr. Shelly has planted ten acres in bulbs this year and has developed an extensive business in that line. He raises them for the bulbs and not for the blossoms, and sells most of his product to jobbers, who buy in huge quantities. He cultivates the field in much the same manner that a corn field is cultivated.

After the flowers die and the bulbs are in shape for harvesting, they are plowed up like potatoes and put into boxes and barrels for shipment all over the United States.

Married in Polo
Thurs., July 24th

The marriage of Miss Beattie Paul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Paul, and Howard Dennis, son of Frank Dennis, both of Polo, took place Thursday, July 24, 1924, in Chicago. Rev.
C. R. W. Kegley, pastor of Saint Marks Lutheran church of Chicago, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis will make their home in the present with the bridegroom's father, near Polo. Their many friends extend congratulations.

SCORE BATHING BEAUTIES—

Cleveland, O., Aug. 20.—Miss Bertha
McKinney has asked the local W. C.
T. U. to turn its fire on bathing beauty contests, which, she says, "have attained the proportions of a genuine evil, comparable with the saloon, in its palmy days."

HERE TO ATTEND REUNION.
IS GUEST MRS. HILL—

Mrs. Albert Cashman of Polo, was here yesterday to attend the reunion of the Dixon College students and was also a guest of her friend, Mrs. C. E.
Hill of North Dixon.

W. R. C. TO MEET
MONDAY—

The members of the W. R. C. will meet Monday afternoon at 2:30 in G.
A. R. hall and a large attendance of members is desired.

HAVE BEEN GUESTS AT
J. W. BUSBY HOME—

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Collins and daughter, Miss Demla, of Mason City, Iowa, have been spending a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W.
Busby, 503 East McKenney street. On Tuesday morning the party of five motored to Oak Park where they were entertained at the home of the latter's

MISS CAMPBELL HOME FROM CHICAGO—

Miss Frances Campbell is home from Chicago where she spent the summer with relatives and in attending the professional dancing school, where she took lessons. Miss Frances has appeared before Dixon audiences many times, always delighting with her artistic dancing.

WAISTLINE HIGH

We have here the raised waistline about which there has been so much talk, and very charming. It is, too, Black crepe with a broad overplaid is the material and fur bands and a narrow kid belt are the trimmings.
The skirt is very full and circular and the sleeves are very long and tight.
This is a decidedly new line and gives one a chance to deviate from the straight and narrow.

daughter and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harley L. Swarts, for three days, returning to Dixon Thursday evening. Mrs.
Swarts returning with them for a week's visit with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins left for Des Moines Saturday morning where they will continue their visit.

Shower Proved a Delightful Event

A very enjoyable event was that held last evening at the home of Mr.
and Mrs. Lot Dimon, 1714 First street, when a group of friends gathered to hold a miscellaneous shower for Miss Inez Kested and Lon Boyer, Jr. Miss Kested and Mr. Boyer are to be married some time in September.

The Dimon home was prettily decorated in garden flowers for the occasion. Pink and white were the chief colors used.

Mr. Boyer and Miss Kested were the recipients of many beautiful presents.
The prize gift of the evening was a handsome linen table cloth and napkins.

Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the happy evening. Pre-tily pink baskets filled with pink and white candies were passed, and the confectionery was a sort of camouflage, for at the bottom of the baskets was rice, which was used to shower
Miss Kested and Mr. Boyer.

There was much merriment during the evening and it proved to be one of much enjoyment for all present, all joining in wishing the couple of honor much happiness in advance. It was late ere the guests departed for their homes after a delightful time.

Bethel U. E. Missionary Society Meeting

The Missionary Society of Bethel U.
E. church held a very delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. John Godt of Long avenue, with her daughter, Mrs.
Harry Lester, assisting in entertaining on Thursday.

Some thirty members and friends were present to enjoy the pleasant afternoon and interesting program, consisting of a song by all present; the devotions, which were led by Mrs. Hill, with Mrs. Missman, Mrs. Alters, and Miss Smith, taking part which was followed by a number of prayers in behalf of "Our Workers in the Field, and the Need of Consecrated People,
for the Missionary Work."

The topic, Child Labor, was developed in a very complete and creditable manner by Miss Carrie Smith, covering a large field of thought, on the Causes; Magratory Workers; regulation of child labor by our laws, and the effect of Child Labor.

Leaflets were read by Mrs. Lester and Miss Mary Martin.

Piano selections were given by Nina Godt and Jessie Weyant, who also gave a duet and Theresa and Gertrude Walin, all being much appreciated and enjoyed.

A lively business meeting followed and plans were made in preparation for a missionary conference to be held in the near future at the church.

Closing prayers were then given,
and a social hour, with the serving of delicious refreshments by the hostesses, was enjoyed by all.

SUNSET TEA ROOM CLOSED
LAST EVENING—

The Sunset Tea Room at Grand Detour, which has been a most popular place all summer, closed for the season Friday evening. It was announceed the enterprise would be conducted again next summer.

ERNEST SWARTS VISITED MR.
AND MRS. H. SWARTS—

Ernest Swarts motored to Oak Park with Mr. and Mrs. Harley L. Swarts Sunday, Aug. 17th, for a visit of three days, returning to Dixon Wednesday evening.

WERE GUESTS AT W. J.
WORSLEY HOME—

Attorney and Mrs. Richard Steele and son, of Greighton, Neb., were guests for a portion of the week at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Worsley.

TO ENJOY OUTING
OF A WEEK—

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Swartley of Sterling and Mrs. Eleanor Coover left this morning for Whitewater, Wis., where they have rented a cottage for a week's outing.

LEAVES FOR ATLANTIC TO JOIN MR. AND MRS. UPHAM—

MADAME JOHANNA HESS-BURR
announces to the readers of the Dixon Evening Telegraph that her fall term opens, September 1st. Those who wish to take advantage of her instruction and art in singing should apply early.
Her success in these parts aside from her classes in Chicago and Sterling has been beyond all expectation. Mrs.
Burr promises many interesting performances during the coming season.
The success of her concerts and operas and the always crowded Dixon Theatre speaks volumes for her ability. Mrs.
Burr has under preparation Faust,
Carmen, Mikado, Eljah, Verdis Requiem. Besides miscellaneous concerts given by students who have not appeared in Dixon before. Applicants for chorus can receive training without expense to them provided they are able to read music.

SEE OVER THE HILL.

The increase in prices of farm products is going to enable many farmers to see over the top of the hill they have been climbing hopelessly.

It is not necessary for prices to remain at the point they have reached to let the farmer get over, if he has been prudent and has not indulged in too great extravagance in the matter of credit. It is said that a few cents more on all products by the pound or bushel, without increases on what he had to buy, would have prevented the disaster in agricultural territory.

Although the high prices have caught many producers with none of their products on hand, they have come when the grain is in shock and the bins are about to be filled again. In fact threshing machines are humming and wheat south of the Dakotas has been harvested.

This rise in prices by no means pulls the farmer out of the hole, but he is going to be able to pay his interest, accumulation of which discouraged him in any thought ever of reaching the principal.

"It removes the big hump in the road," one banker expressed it.

That one circumstance appears to have changed the entire atmosphere of rural districts from gloom to sunshine.

BIG COLLEGE RUSH.

The student who has been out of a large school long enough to reflect advises others to attend the smaller college. The student who went to the small college advises others to go there. But that does not stop the rush to the universities already overcrowded.

There seems to be something about the bigness of a school, like the bigness of a city, that attracts the youth. He is full of ambitions and of dreams of becoming a part of big things.

The small institutions are begging students to come. The state schools are begging legislatures for money to take care of students who better could be cared for in the small colleges. So great has become the crush in the state universities that they are able to follow a system of selection, and they are doing it. Students who are not applying themselves are forced to give way to those who are attending for a higher purpose.

BOOTLEG.

A big submarine is reported to be landing German beer, Scotch whisky and French champagnes near Boston. New York has its rum-running airplanes.

The country is far from dry, but liquor is getting harder to get when the bootleg gentry have to resort to planes and submarines. These two inventions may shortly be the chief problems of the liquor sleuths. At any rate, you'll live to see police and criminals fight duels overhead in the air.

THE BEST BET NEGLECTED.

If the average person got from his auto as few miles per gallon of gasoline, as much engine trouble or as irregular service as most of us are content to get from our bodies, he would make changes. Dr. Frances Scott of Smith College says this in a lecture.

How many people take as good care of their bodies as they do of their autos or radios?

And yet the human body, a thousand times more delicate than the auto, radio or any other machine, is given very little attention. Its fuel (food) is fed to it haphazardly, with little of the care we bestow in buying gas for the auto or batteries or tubes for the radio.

The owner, careful not to put too much "juice" on the filaments of the radio tubes or too heavy a task on his auto, repeatedly throws too much strain on his body—especially its nerves, stomach and heart.

The noted surgeon, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, probably had all this in mind when he said recently that civilization can end "mass diseases" such as yellow fever, but individual ailments (such as cancer and nervous indigestion) are gaining.

Diet and proper exercise—neglect of these are the big enemies of health, Dr. Mayo emphasizes.

"Continuous over-eating is the bane of our modern existence."

Not only over-eating, but eating the wrong combinations of foods. . . Putting molasses in the gasoline tank and sand in the gears.

One trouble with most people is that they want to buy good health and long life in pill or bottled form. That's why the monkey gland experimenters caught popular fancy. They held forth the promise of health and longevity without individual effort in the matter of food and exercise.

This bottle-and-pill fetish is further illustrated in the annual drug bill of our country—500 million dollars, 300 millions of which are spent on so-called patent medicines. Thirty years ago only 2699 drug items were on the market. Today the figure is over 45,000.

THIEVES.

Today's dream is tomorrow's accomplishment—just as surely now as when men first dreamed of flying with artificial wings.

A big scientific dream is transmission of electric power by radio. Collecting payment from consumers would be difficult, next to impossible. The cost will have to be paid by government from tax funds. One instance of many, that we are headed toward a socialistic condition whether we approve or not.

EYES.

Two million American school children are backward in their studies because of defective eyesight, claims an organization with a name as long as the number of German marks in circulation.

Proper spectacles would correct this defect. Wisely cities are realizing that brains cannot be trained to function at their best unless expert care is devoted to pupils' eyes, teeth, diet and other physical factors.

TOM SIMS SAYS

After everybody gets well educated there will be no one left to do our work for us.

You never can understand women. One had a man arrested for cruelty to a rat.

'Some towns are so lucky. In St. Louis an insurance man is missing.

Chicago bandits robbed a poker game and the winners lost heavily.

When a man tells a girl why his wife doesn't understand him it usually is because she does.

Mud baths are being used to make people beautiful, but you don't see very many pretty politicians.

Some of these stump speakers will be up a tree soon.

Georgia woman who wondered if thieves would get money hidden in a piano found they would.

People who live in rented houses should not write telephone numbers on the walls.

Every man is entitled to life, liberty and freedom in the pursuit of money.

Most people have to work. That is why they do it.

The man who doesn't know good manners frequently gets into the soup while eating it.

Men become intoxicated with love. That is why it is bootlegged.

Truth is stranger than fiction. It doesn't come around as often.

About the hardest thing to cure is injured feelings.

Every man knows he will accidentally mail a letter in a trash can before he dies.

Even in this small world there is room for more big men.

The chief trouble of the man who worked up from the bottom is he has a son who is working down from the top.

Only reliable thing about some people is their unreliability.

Mr. and Mrs. Zebra were out sunning themselves.

"Let's go and see Mr. and Mrs. Zebra," said Weeny Elephant to the Twins. "They were very good friends of mine in the circus."

"What do zebras look like?" asked Nancy.

"Don't you know?" said Weeny, in surprise. "Why, they look exactly like awnings. But I never could make up my mind whether they were white with black stripes or black with white stripes. And they are all exactly alike."

"I know what you mean now," said Nancy. "They look like ponies, don't they?"

"Yes! Just exactly," said Weeny. "They used to walk along in the circus parade pulling Cinderella in a silver slipper."

"I remember," cried Nick. "Do you suppose they'll let us ride them?"

"Wouldn't be surprised a bit if they did," said Weeny. "Why, here we are now, right at the place."

Mr. and Mrs. Zebra were out sunning themselves on a nice grassy spot in front of their house when the travelers arrived. But they were not alone. A tiny zebra about knee high to a duck was playing around and kicking up his heels like a spring lamb.

"Hello, Weeny," called Mr. Zebra. "I just kind of thought that was you."

"Well, you don't have to look twice to see me, did you, Mr. Zebra?" laughed Weeny. "I've stopped growing, though, and I say she's thankful, because she always had to buy my clothes two sizes too large. I grew into them so fast. Oh, dearie me! I beg your pardon! I forgot that I had passengers on my back. Mr. Zebra, these are Nancy and Nick, the Twins."

"Twins, this is Mr. Zebra. Hello, Mrs. Zebra!"

Mrs. Zebra came over too, and Weeny shook hands with his trunk and said how well she looked and was that her baby. And Mrs. Zebra looked as proud as a duchess and said that he was, and his name was Tiny.

So they all stayed and had a good time.

One day Mr. and Mrs. Zebra said they would take Nancy and Nick for a ride if Weeny would mind the baby. "Of course I will," said Weeny. "I just love to mind babies."

So Nick got on Mr. Zebra and Nancy got on Mrs. Zebra's back and away they went.

Weeny played with Tiny for a while and after a while he got sleepy, for the sun was pretty warm.

So he dozed off, Weeny did.

After a while Weeny woke up and couldn't see Tiny anywhere. Not a hair of him was to be found.

"My goodness!" he said to himself. "I'm a nice nurse, I am, to let Mrs. Zebra's baby get lost!"

And he hunted and hunted. But no Tiny was to be found.

Pretty soon Mr. and Mrs. Zebra came trotting home with the Twins.

"I'm sorry," said Weeny, "but your baby is lost. I went to sleep and when I woke up he was gone."

"Why, there he is, right under you!" laughed Mrs. Zebra. "He was hunting a shady spot, and you make a good bit of shade. Weeny Elephant. When you moved, I support he moved, too, and you never knew he was there."

"My goodness! I feel a lot better," said Weeny. "I was some worried, Mrs. Zebra."

To Fly Big Bomber to Trask Picnic

Piloting a huge 400-horsepower bomber—the same airplane in which he flew with the Dempsey-Firpo fight pictures from New York to Chicago at night—Aviator John Livingston will fly from Monmouth, Ill., to Rockford Tuesday to appear the following day at the annual Trask Bridge picnic.

Livingston is the pilot who conducted an altitude test for a local oil concern here last January, ascending to a height of 11,000 feet, where the temperature was recorded at 42 degrees below zero. He was a lieutenant in the air service during the war.

During the Trask Bridge picnic, the big Breguet will circle the grounds, landing nearby to carry passengers. The huge "ship" carries five passengers in addition to the pilot.

IT PAYS TO TRADE IN DIXON; SPEND YOUR MONEY HERE

Fancies Gained in Out-of-town Buying Are Lost in the End.

(By E. M. Trowern.)

The great pivot upon which the affairs of the world swing is individual responsibility. Millions upon millions of tons of literature are being spread throughout the world in all languages, every year, calling attention to the wrongs of society as a whole, but in the final analysis these wrongs can never be entirely righted until every individual in every community takes an individual responsibility upon himself or herself to see that they are righted, pure unadulterated selfishness is at the root of all trouble. Strange as it may seem, no person can do a selfish thing or commit an unfair act without having to pay the price themselves, or, in other words, "there is a price ticket on everything."

Take, for instance, a group of persons who are employed in a manufacturing plant, or in any other institution, who conceive the idea that if they bought certain lines of staple goods in bulk at wholesale prices and divided them up among themselves that they would save money and thereby benefit themselves, or, in other words, they would be adding to their earning power. If the plant or institution in which they were working was located in a prosperous town or village, their action would effect the legitimate retail merchants who were endeavoring to serve them in the town, and the result would be that the retail merchants who formerly handled the lines which were purchased by these persons at wholesale prices would cease handling those lines, and in order to pay their rent and their running expenses, they would have to increase the cost of the other lines which they carried and which these employees required. What benefit, therefore, would be gained by transactions of that character? If you want to do your fellow citizens, the retail merchants, an injustice by interfering with their trade for the purpose of endeavoring to benefit yourself for selfish purposes, you have to pay the price in the end, either in money or in loss of service. This rule applies in every walk of life and you cannot evade it.

The more retail stores we have in the community the better the community will be served. Competition is the most sacred weapon in the world and it should never be interfered with. Retail merchants open stores in various locations because they believe that they can do business in those locations, or, in other words, they take the individual responsibility and consequently the risk. Is this not as it should be? Would any sane person suggest that the government should decide as to where and when stores should be opened, as was attempted in Germany? We think not. The basic foundation upon which every community is built is the action and decision of the individual. They locate where they themselves decide is best for them, and around them others associate, and in this way our community life is built up.

We, therefore, repeat again that the great pivot upon which the affairs of the world swing is individual responsibility. Each individual in every community is there because, in their opinion, it suits them best, otherwise they would leave and go to some other place.

To build a healthy and a prosperous community, as well as a contented community, money must circulate freely. It can only circulate according to the desires of each individual. If the stores were full of goods and no one wanted to purchase them because a large number of persons sent

Memorial to Harding in Kansas Wheat Field

A year ago, while on his way to San Francisco where he died, President Warren G. Harding turned "dirt farmer" one day at Hutchinson, Kan., and shocked wheat. On the spot where the late president handled his last bundle of wheat has been erected a monument (upper), paid for by contributions from school children, Kan., and shocked wheat. On the spot then 11, recipient of a kiss from the chief executive during his visit, unveiled the monument. In the lower left Harding is shown as a "dirt farmer" on the spot.

their money out of town, the stores would soon close and be "out at the knees." If those who sent their money out of town to mail order houses owned property in the town, or were employed by the town in any capacity, their property would soon depreciate in value and as we stated before, they would be "paying the price" for their selfishness, which would again prove that "there is a price ticket on everything." You cannot do a mean trick to anyone without having to pay the price, and this is just as true of every city, town or village.

Twenty-five men sat at a table and it was discovered that they all owed one another ten dollars apiece. The first man handed his neighbor ten dollars and it was passed around, thus paying debts amounting to two hundred and fifty dollars, and the first man received it back again. Let us suppose that money was short in that town, and the first man sent the ten dollar bill away to a mail order house, how long do you think those debts would be outstanding? The more that money is kept circulating in the home town the better chance every one has to float his or her services, or their merchandise, and they both mean the same thing in the end. Money is only accumulated industry and every one can get some if they only work for it, and the chief thing is to see that it does not get cornered by one or two huge monopolies, who can then control labor.

If our country had many more small prosperous towns instead of so many large cities, she would be immensely better off. There are no slum sections in the towns. To their credit, it can be said that the townspeople look after their poor. No man, woman or child need starve while the townspeople have bread. They know one another better than do the people of large cities, as they are nearer to each other. It has been stated that our country today could accommodate itself to several million more farmers and then have room for many more. Does that not mean much for the towns? The first question that a prospective purchaser of a farm asks is, "How near is it to a town?" Is that not a proper question to ask? The town is the heart blood to the community; it is the bright, social spot in the life of every farming district; it is the one thing that binds the boys and girls to the old home town. Kill your towns by sending your money away to mail order houses, and you are thrusting the knife into the very heart of the nation. Build up your towns by keeping your money in local circulation and you are building up production and helping your manufacturing industries and making the people more contented and happy, and by spending your money in the home town you are creating better stores, a greater variety of stocks, better service to the community, and you are securing lower prices through having local competition.

STATE HEALTH EXHIBIT COUNTY FAIR FEATURE

"It is our duty to do everything possible to preserve life, prevent disease and promote public health," said Governor Small in his biennial message to the 33rd general assembly.

Visitors to the Bureau County Fair, August 26 to 29, will have the opportunity to observe how their state government is adhering to this expressed policy. Under one of the big tents housing the state exhibits the department of public health will be functioning. Every adult person who enters will be put through the paces of a physical examination, supplemented by medical advice. Height, weight, blood pressure, lung capacity, blood tests for anemia and a general observation of nutritional condition will be included in the examination.

As an educational measure toward teaching folks how to keep well, there will be motion pictures, treating vividly of such subjects as safe milk, diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid fever prevention and the control of venereal diseases. Many human interest stories are interwoven in these pictures.

Adults will not enjoy a monopoly of these facilities, for the little ones have not been overlooked. In the planning the state health campaign, Better baby conferences will be conducted. Mothers may have their babies examined by experts, and without cost. In addition they will receive free advice from well trained and competent physicians who have specialized on this subject.

WALES IS READY FOR START FOR AMERICA TODAY

His Steamer Packed with Debutantes Who Must Get Home.

London, Aug. 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Prince of Wales has packed his trunks, bid good-bye to his cronies, and with the exception of a few official matters to be attended to today, is ready to hand over his tickets to the purser of the Berengaria which will leave tomorrow from Southampton to take him on his second visit to the United States. Wales' trip this time will lack the exclusiveness of his first visit, which was made in a British man-of-war, for the capacity of the Berengaria has been packed by debutantes who for various reasons are cutting off their European trips to hurry homeward on this particular liner.

The prince's suite, consisting of two bedrooms, saloon and breakfast room, is adorned by that of his cousins, Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, who are accompanying him. His equestrian and attendants will distribute themselves in rooms bordering on the royal heir's quarters.

The prince will not dine in the general dining room, but a table will be placed in an alcove off the balcony of the saloon, set for the nine members of the prince's party who are entitled by invitation to sit around the board.

No Uniforms this Trip. Wales' wardrobe has been limited to three trunks and some smaller luggage. It is understood that he will not appear in uniform at any time during the trip, but in the three trunks are sufficient clothes to spread new styles among men in this country.

The COLONIAL Grate saves your fuel

Unlike ordinary grates, the COLONIAL grate actually saves fuel. The COLONIAL owner fires scientifically. He doesn't pay good money for fuel and then have it run through his grates like sand through a sieve. There is no unburned fuel in his ashes.

GREEN COLONIAL FURNACE

Perhaps more people have bought a COLONIAL on account of the advantage offered in its grate than for any other single reason.

The whole secret of the COLONIAL grate design is that each of the four bars is operated separately. You remove ashes and clinkers from any part without disturbing the live coal. This, as you will recognize, is another COLONIAL distinct departure from ordinary furnace design—and another improvement.

Its cleanliness is another important advantage. Notice how the bars extend through the door frame. No dust or ashes can escape while shaking the grate. There are many other COLONIAL features we would like to show you.

YANKS HAVE HARD TIME KEEPING IN FIRST POSITION

Senators Are Right Behind Them and Pressing 'em Closely.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Miller Huggins' Yanks, leading the league by one game, are having trouble getting out of their tracks before the Senators get into them. Detroit took the first round of their series with the champions after 12 elabamg innings, the Yanks making more hits but the Tigers hitting harder when it counted. The Tigers are now only two and one-half games behind the leaders and a game and a half to the rear of the Senators who took the day off.

The National League races developed few new angles, the Giants doing their "daily dozen" trimmed the Cardinals for the third time in as many days.

Cleveland's lead in the second division was cut to one point when the Red Sox beat them out in a hard fought game. Coveleskie passed Pinch Hitter Pleinich and Flagstead. Wambogans took a toe hold and doubled to center and two runs crossed the pan.

The White Sox with no game scheduled, rested.

Giants Do "Daily Dozen"
The National League races developed few new angles, the Giants doing their "daily dozen" trimmed the Cardinals for the third time in as many days.

McGraw's warriors still lead the Pirates in second place by five and a half games.

The Pittsburgh crew which licked the Braves yesterday, lead the Dodgers in third place by two and one-half games, the Brooklyn team going down to defeat at the hands of the Cubs who took sweet revenge on the Dodgers in the second game of the series. The battle for third place is close, the Windy City club being only one game behind Uncle Robbie's boys today.

The Phillies climbed out of the cellar when they landed an eleven-inning victory over the Reds, getting 16 hits to the Cincinnati's ten.

Boston once more reposes in last place.

Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals champion batter of the National League had his consecutive hitting streak broken in the third inning against the Giants, when he grounded to the pitcher. He had collected nine hits in a row.

George Kelly, Giant's first baseman, had a perfect day at bat against the Cardinals with four hits, one a double, in four times up.

Art Weis, outfielder, purchased by the Cubs from the Wichita Falls Texas league club, broke into the game against the Dodgers and collected four hits in four times at bat. One of his blows was good for two bases.

The Red Sox victory over the Indians was their fifth straight.

CLAIM MORAN WAS HURT

Newhaven, Conn., Aug. 22.—Development of x-ray plates of an injury to the left hand of Pal Moran of New Orleans is expected to determine the exact nature of an injury, which Dr. Charles P. DeFoe, physician for the Boxing Board of the town of Hamden declares Moran suffered during the 9th round of a bout with Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., last night.

Referee McAuliff stopped the bout at the end of the 9th and announced that the bout was no contest. Then, in the advice of Thomas Donohue, chairman of the state commission, McAuliff held up the hand of Kaplan as winner of the bout. The decision was based on the claim of the head of State Boxing Commission that Moran was not trying.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Aug. 22.—From a lowly bench warmer, awaiting a chance to slip into the game as a substitute, to one of the brightest stars in the National League, is the remarkable rise of Hazen Cuyler, youthful outfield star with the Pirates.

Cuyler today finds himself battling the famous Rogers Hornsby, second base star of the Cardinals, for the batting championship of the League. He bagged eleven hits in his last five games, giving him an average of .383 and is trailing twenty-seven points behind Hornsby, who is topping the list with .410. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, suffered a slight slump, dropping into third place with .366. The averages include game of Wednesday.

The rise of Cuyler, a rookie from the Southern League, reads like a page from baseball fiction. His chance came by accident when Max Carey, the Pittsburgh veteran, was injured. When Carey returned to the game, Manager McKecknie of the Pirates found Cuyler's services indispensable. His batting, fielding and sparkling base running was an inspiration to the Pirates, who carried the fight to the Giants for the lead in the pennant race.

Cuyler, under the coaching of Carey, developed into one of the greatest base stealers in the league. Carey is leading with 30, with Cuyler and Heathcote of Chicago tied for second place honors with 23 each.

Jack Fournier of the Dodgers, leading home run hitter of the league, is basking in the total of 24, while Frisch of the Giants, is setting the pace in scoring, having crossed the plate 90 times, six within the last week.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Brooklyn, 34; Young, New York, 34; Reeder, Cincinnati, 34; Roush, Cincinnati, 34; Blades, St. Louis, 32; Bottomley, St. Louis, 32; High, Brooklyn, 32; Kelly, New York, 31; Griggsby, Chicago, 31.

Veterans of the American League are gradually crowding their way toward the top. Following the example of Eddie Collins of the White Sox, Ty Cobb, pilot of the Tigers; Tris Speaker, leader of the Indians and Harry Heilmann, Detroit slugger have worked themselves up among the leading men.

Ike Ruth who continues to top the regulars dropped from his 400 mark of a week ago to 396. However, he still has a comfortable lead over Bib Falk of the White Sox, who is in second place with 360. George Sider, fell out of the 300 class and is way down in the list with an average of .298.

Ruth failed to increase his record of thirty-eight homers, but managed to get an average of one hit a game in his last four contests, giving him 153 hits for a total of 211 bases. Besides his homers his hits include 28 doubles and seven triples. By scoring twice he ran his run getting record to 116.

Cobb had made the greatest number of hits in the league, turning in 163 blows.

Eddie Collins, failed to add to his string of 33 stolen bases, but still holds a safe lead over his rivals. Other leading batters: Jamieson, Cleveland, 34; Cobb, Detroit, 34; E. Collins, Chicago, 34; Sheely, Chicago, 34; Boone, Boston, 34; Speaker, Cleveland, 34; Heilmann, Detroit, 34; Jacobson, St. Louis, 32; Goslin, Washington, 30; Archdeacon, Chicago, 30.

Des Moines Newspaper Man Makes Hole-in-One Club

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 23.—Jack Monroe of the editorial department of the Des Moines Register made the "hole in one club" yesterday.

Using a spoon on the 140 yard 14th hole at the Grandview Club, Monroe drove the ball directly into the cup, the ball lodging against the pole in such a manner that it could not bounce out.

Search for Writer of Extortion Note in Ottawa Case

A search for the author of a $5000 ransom letter received by the father of Bernice Chalus, Ottawa girl, whose body was taken from Cowe Creek, was resumed with redoubled force under the direction of Chief Deputy Sheriff Ryan.

The investigation is progressing on the theory that the letter, mailed in Chicago hours after the little girl's body had been taken from the flood-swollen stream in Fall River, Townshend, is the work of a "crank" or an amateur extortionist who sought to capitalize on the mystery element involved in the case.

Ernest Chalus, father of the victim, today declared he shared the opinion of the authorities in that he believed the letter an attempt to extort the father of the child's death.

Coroner Donahue and the sheriff's office are confident in the belief that the child went to her death as based largely on the fact that a physician's examination disclosed no marks of violence or other evidence which would tend to show that foul play had entered into the case. The circumstances which surround the case strongly support the accident theory.

For a few days the case was given wide publicity, especially during the period that a search for the child was proving futile. The supposition is that this publicity attracted the attention of an extortionist who sought to capitalize on the situation.

Wireless has developed the newspapers on transoceanic liners to a high degree of constancy.

A STRANGE DIVORCE TANGLE

By NEA Service

Detroit, Mich.—A tangle of divorce romance and marriage has come to light in Detroit's courts.

Dr. Glenn Lenardo Williams, millionaire inventor, and president of Aero Metals Co., divorced his wife, Therese Natolia O'Neill Williams.

He announced he would marry Leora Webster—and he did.

New Jessica Bell, former chorus beauty of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," charged that Williams, the day before his wedding to Miss Webster, appeared at her home and begged her to marry him.

After four hours' pleading, she says, she accepted and they drove to the county building, where Williams, instead of getting a license to marry her, got one in the name of Leora Webster.

Jessie is suing Williams for $50,000 in New York courts for "trifling with her affections," and for 10,000 in Detroit for breach of promise.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH BURKE, CONTINUED

I cannot tell you, dear Ruth, how terribly upset I was when mother read me that telegram. Up to that time, although I was not conscious of it, I must have had hope that Jack would come.

Isn't it queer, dear, that men think women may forgive them everything, while they will not forgive anything? I threw myself down upon the bed, and for the first time since I had arrived home I let myself go. It seemed to me that my life was entirely ruined—and my own sister had done this.

So absorbed was I in my misery and grief that I did not hear my mother come in until she put her hand upon my shoulder.

"Leslie," she said, "I am writing to John this afternoon. I am going to tell him that Alice wrote that letter. I am going to tell him what I know about the pearls. Then, my child, if he does not come and ask your pardon, he is not worthy of you, and I counsel you to forget him forever."

I had never seen mother look as stern as she did at that moment. "I wish," she said, "that this had not come at just this time. I am afraid if your father gets the slightest inkling of it it will retard his convalescence."

Now about yourself, dear girl. I wish indeed that I could be with you and see your happiness. Just at present I would not wish my greatest enemy, however, to marry my man. But I expect I shall feel differently some time in the future, for I have a feeling that you are going to be very happy.

Of course, my dear, you know that I could not accept the little shop from Walter. One-third of it is yours, and if, as Walter says, I helped you to find that you were able to cope with the world and make your own living, you certainly have helped me to place an anchor to the windward. If Jack still holds to his unreason, I shall go back and try to run the little shop myself.

There have been two or three reporters here today. Neither my mother nor myself would be interviewed. While we like to read about other people's personal affairs, I find it is always exceedingly annoying to have one's own private joys and sorrows given to a curious and prying world.

I may see you earlier than you expect, if you are returning directly to Albany for a few days. If Jack still persists in not coming or sending me little Jack, I shall go back and get my baby. I don't think he has realized yet that he has no claim upon the child whatever. I would not want my husband to live with me because of a child, for I do not think that helps either the wife or the child. I am sure, however, that Jack still has that conventional idea that as long as the wife and husband live in the same house the family is still intact.

This is an unconsciously long letter, dear, but I had much to say to

DEPLORES LACK OF INTEREST IN POOR CHILDREN

Children's Aid Society Head Blames Efforts to Save Taxes.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Slums and other deplorable conditions of poverty, existing in the rural districts of Illinois are caused to a considerable extent by the desire to monopolize on the part of county officials, according to C. V. Williams, superintendent of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society.

"In many counties children are forced to live in shacks of tin, whose walls keep out neither wind nor rain," Mr. Williams said in a lecture at the University of Chicago. "Excessive poverty in a family or inability to care for the children do not rouse competent agents to investigate and endeavor to ameliorate conditions. But under the state law the child must first become delinquent before the county can take care of him."

"The school situation in rural districts is another serious problem," Mr. Williams stated. "When school officials refuse to send their children to school when there is considerable work on the farm, how can we expect others to send their children."

"County commissioners do not understand social psychology. They think only of the cost of caring for the children; and endeavor to economize in every way possible. They point with pride to the low per capita cost of children's homes, and in many cases send minors to almshouses, where they are lodged with adult insane, and cripples and poverty-stricken. Often they do not have enough plates or chairs in homes for children."

Speaking of the adoption law, Williams pointed out that some judges in Cook county regarded adoption as a purely statutory matter and allowed a child to be adopted without investigation of conditions under which it is about to be subjected.

He brought out the fact that the Children's Home and Aid society is trying to help the situation by appointing investigators to go into homes and help the child to make adjustments before the situation has gone so far that he becomes a delinquent.

God's Orchestra.

Country people and those who live in the smaller towns have little opportunity to hear the world's greatest music. Most of them never hear a grand opera or a great orchestra. But there is a great orchestra out in every rural neighborhood, which everyone can hear and learn to love.

"God's great bandmaster waves his baton—the red and gold of the morning. When he waves it over one farm a rooster crows, at another a turkey gobbles, and then with a swing to the prairie you hear the far-off low booming of the prairie chickens. At the top of the tallest tree a robin is playing his part and soon all the birds are singing in a grand chorus. You listen and wonder in reverence and worship you stand before this perfect harmony." So writes Mr. A. J. McGuire of the University of Minnesota in "The Farmer." It is all very true. Many of these people have a longing for the feverish life of the great cities, but when they try it the novelty soon wears off. They feel an empty space in their hearts. They miss the sweet influences of sky and field and foliage. And sweetest of all the memories that call them back to the dear old country side, is God's orchestra of the birds.

Many a lonely heart has been cheered by their messages of hope. They take solitude of winter and fill it with a happy tenantry. It is difficult to feel sad and morose with a buoyant bird song from the nearby thicket.

For after all, where can one find more real comfort, peace and contentment than in living in a beautiful country side home, conveniently located near a good, clean thriving town? There is no place in the world where life is more enjoyable and the big brownstone mansions of the city are but haunted castles in comparison with the average country home today.

The "home town" is not only "home" for the townspeople but it is, in reality, the larger home of the surrounding country as well. Why then should an appeal for loyalty to the home

CHAPTER XIV
THE CONVERT

That tale of Othman's being borne anon to Fenzileh by her son was gall and wormwood to her jealous soul. Evil enough to know that Sakr-el-Bahr was returned in spite of the fervent prayers for his founding which she had addressed both to the God of her forefathers and to the God of her adoption. But that he should have returned in triumph bringing with him heavy spoils that must exalt him further in the affection of Asad and the esteem of the people was bitterness indeed. It left her mute and stricken, bereft even of the power to curse him.

Asad, when her mind recovered from the shock she turned it to the consideration of what at first seemed a trivial detail in Othman's tale as reported by Marzak.

"It was most singularly odd that he should have undertaken that long voyage to England to wrest these just those two captives; that being there he should not have ridden in true corsair fashion and packed his ship with slaves. Most singularly odd!"

They were alone behind the green lattice through which flowed the perfumes of the garden and the throbbing of a nightingale's voice laden with the tale of its love for the rose. Fenzileh reclined upon a divan that was spread with soft Turkish carpets, and one of her gold-embroidered slippers had dropped from her beauteous stained toes. Her lovely arms were raised to support her head, and she stared up at the lamp of many colors that hung from the fretted ceiling.

Marzak paced the length of the chamber back and forth, and there was silence save for the soft swish of his slippers along the floor.

"Well?" she asked him impatiently at last. "Does it not seem odd to thee?"

"Odd, indeed, O my mother," the youth replied, coming to a halt before her.

"And canst think of naught that was the cause of it?"

"The cause of it?" quoth he, his lovely young face, so closely modeled upon her own, looking blank and vacant.

"Aye, the cause of it," she said impatiently. "Canst do naught but stare? Am I the mother of a fool? Will thou sip and gaze away thy days whilst that dog descended Frank tramples thee underfoot, using thee but as a stepping stone to the power that should be thine own? And that be so, Marzak, I would thou hadst strangled in my womb."

He recoiled before the Italian fury of her, was dully resentful even, suspecting that in such words from a woman, were she twenty times his mother, there was something dishonoring to his manhood.

"What can I do?" he cried. "Dost ask me? Art thou not a man to think and act? I tell thee that misbegotten son of a Christian and a Jew will trample thee in the dust. He is greedy as the locust, wily as the serpent, and ferocious as the panther. By Allah! I would I had never borne a son. Rather might men point at me the finger of scorn and call me mother of the wind than that I should have brought forth a man who knows not how to be a man."

"Show me the way," he cried. "Set me a task; tell me what is to do and thou shalt not find me lacking. O my mother. Until then spare me these insults, or I come no more to thee."

At this threat that strange woman heaved herself from her soft couch. She ran to him and flung her arms about his neck, set her cheek against his own. Not eighteen years in the Basha's harem had stifled the European mother in her, the passionate Sicilian woman, fierce as a tiger in her maternal love.

"O my child, my lovely boy," she almost sobbed. "It is my fear for thee that makes me harsh. If I am angry it is but my love that speaks. My rage for thee to see another come usurping the place beside thy father that should be thine. Ah! But we will prevail, sweet son of mine. I shall find a way to return that foreign offal to the dunghill whence it sprang. Trust me, O Marzak! Sh! Thy father comes. Away! Leave me alone with him."

She was wise in that, for she knew that alone Asad was more easily controlled by her, since the pride was absent which must compel him to turn and rend her did she speak so before others. Marzak vanished behind the screen of fretted sandalwood that masked one doorway even as Asad loomed in the other.

He came forward smiling, his slender brown fingers combing his long beard, his white djellaba trailing behind him along the ground.

"Thou hast heard, not a doubt, O Fenzileh," said he. "Art thou answered enough?"

She sank down again upon her cushions and idly considered herself in a steel mirror set in silver.

"Answered?" she echoed lazily, with infinite scorn and a hint of rippling, contemptuous laughter running through the word. "Answered indeed. Sakr-el-Bahr risks the lives of two hundred children of Islam and a ship that, being taken, was become the property of the State upon a voyage to England that had no object but the capturing of two slaves—two slaves, when, had his purpose been sincere, it might have been two hundred."

"Ha! And is that all that thou hast heard?" he asked her, mocking in his turn.

"All that signifies," she replied, still mirroring herself. "I heard as a matter of lesser import that on his return meeting fortuitously a Frankish ship that chanced to be richly laden he seized it in thy name."

"Fortuitously, sayest thou?" "What else?" She lowered the mirror, and her bold, insolent eyes met his own quite fearlessly. "Thou'lt not tell me that it was any part of his design when he went forth?"

He frowned; his head sank slowly in thought. Observing the advantage gained, she thrust it home.

"It was a lucky wind that blew that Dutchman into his path, and luckier still her being so richly fraught that he may dazzle thine eyes with the sight of gold and gems, and so blind thee to the real purpose of his voyage."

"Its real purpose?" he asked dully. "What was its real purpose?"

She smiled a smile of infinite knowledge to hide her utter ignorance, her inability to supply even a reason that should wear an air of truth.

"Dost ask me, O perspicuous Asad? Are not thine eyes as sharp, thy wits as keen at least as mine, that what is clear to me should be hidden from thee? Or hath this Sakr-el-Bahr bewitched thee with enchantments of Babil?"

He strode to her and caught her wrist in a cruelly rough grip of his sinewy old hand.

"His purpose, thou fad! Pour out the foulness of thy mind. Speak!"

She sat up, flushed and defiant. "I will not speak," said she. "Thou wilt not? Now, by the Head of Allah! Dost dare to stand before my face and defy me, thy lord? I'll have thee whipped, Fenzileh. I have been too tender of these these many years—so tender that thou hast forgot the rods that await the disobedient wife. Speak, then, ere thy flesh is bruised or speck thereafter at thy pleasure."

"I will not," she repeated. "Though I be flung to the hooks, not another word will I say of Sakr-el-Bahr. Shall I unveil the truth to be spurned and scorned and dubbed a liar and the mother of lies?"

Then abruptly changing she fell to weeping.

"O source of my life!" she cried to him. "How cruelly unjust to me art thou!"

She was groveling now, a thing of supplest grace, her lovely arms entwining his knees.

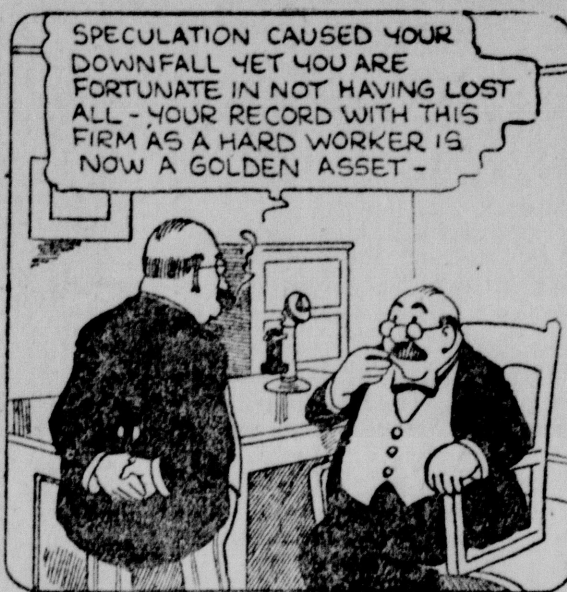

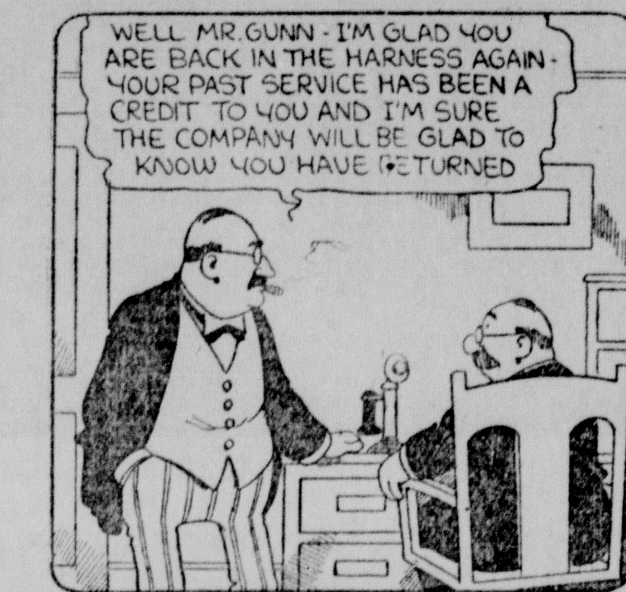

"When my love for thee drives me to utter what I see I earn but thy anger, which is more than I can endure. I swoon beneath the weight of it."

He flung her off impatiently. "What a weariness is a woman's tongue!" he cried, and stalked out again, convinced from past experiences that did he linger he would be whelmed in a torrent of words.

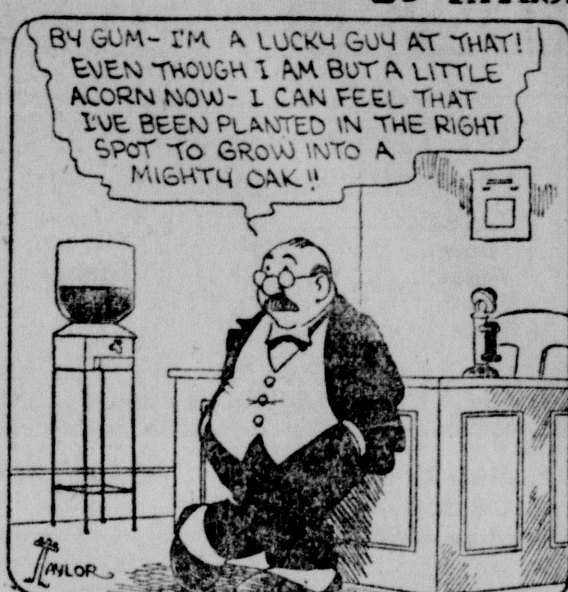

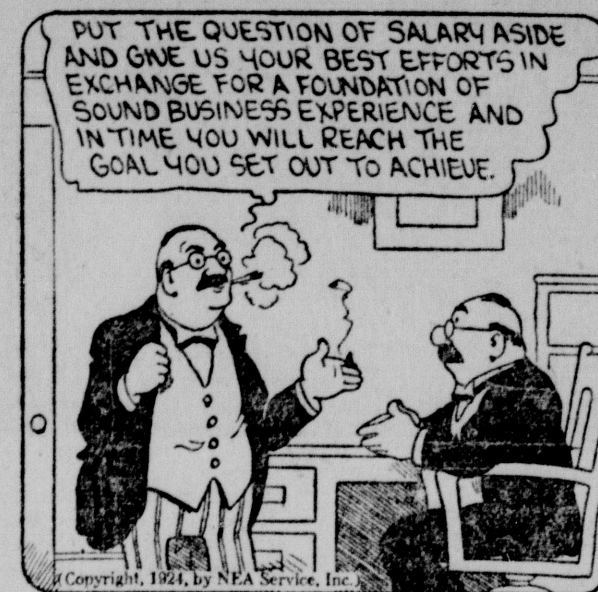

But her poison was shrewdly administered and slowly did its work. It abode in his mind to torture him with the doubts that were its very essence. No reason, however well founded, that she might have urged for Sakr-el-Bahr's strange conduct could have been half so insidious as her suggestion that there was a reason. It gave him something vague and intangible to consider. Something that he could not reject since it had no substance he could grapple with. Impetuously he awaited the morning and the coming of Sakr-el-Bahr himself, but he no longer awaited it with the ardent wholehearted eagerness as of a father awaiting the coming of a beloved son.

The WELL DRESSED MAN

When the Clock Strikes Six Even little Miss Cinderella was content to go back to her drudgery, because she had bewitched a prince and lived for a night. No matter what small heed a man may pay to day dress, to be smartly and correctly turned out in evening clothes gives him an invisible pat on the back that enhances the occasion and enriches the remembrance.

Moreover, when a woman wears formal or semi-formal evening dress to a dance or for dining out it is obligatory upon a man, as a mere matter of deference, to match her appearance with his own. Some of us are habitually remiss about this, yet it is one of the primary principles of courtly custom recognized and practiced the world over. Thoughtlessness, rather than ignorance, is accountable for such laxness which prevails among many men who know better and is condemned by all men who know best.

The smart details of semi-formal evening or Tuxedo dress are illustrated here. You see the four-button black silk waistcoat with wide, oval-shaped lapels and short, blunt bottom corners; the starched or semi-starched shirt exposing two studs; the bold-tail wing collar and the black batwing or butterfly tie with a right-and-tight knot and spreading, fan-shaped ends. All these things are unexceptionally correct, but they do not have to be followed literally. For example, a more conservative, straighter shape may be worn in place of the batwing tie; or one centre solitary stud may be preferred to two; or the tie may be set under the collar tabs instead of over them; or the waistcoat lapels may be more V-shaped instead of oval-shaped. Such incidentals fashion leaves to the whim of the wearer. It only attempts to guide him in the broad essentials of good form and established social usage.

Later, the white Tuxedo waistcoat has been worn by some well-dressed men in place of the black and, this style has no less an authority to sponsor it than the Prince of Wales. However, the black waistcoat, long the standard Tuxedo color, is still the favorite of most of us. As concerns collars, though, only the wing and not the turn-down, double-band shape is proper. Be punctilious about this rule.

AURORA CROWDS HEAR PLEA FOR RADICAL TICKET

Congressman Wefald Talks Today for LaFollette.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 22.—Congressman Knut Wefald of Hawley, Minn., the only farmer-labor representative in the lower house, spoke today at the Central States Fair for the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket. "Our whole campaign," he said, "can be summed up in one short sentence: government ownership of the government. The power that governs must be used to break up private monopoly instead of being used to build it up and extend its powers."

"The republican and democrat parties are in nowise different, Mr. Wefald said and must die as they should as just reward for political sins." He declared it would be impossible to elect a congress that will follow President Coolidge even if he is elected and added that the last congress which revolted against the president had as the republican leader Longworth said "made the best record in recent years in legislative accomplishment both in volume and importance."

The good record Mr. Wefald ascribed to be the last congress resulted he said from the work of "A small but efficient group in both houses of congress made up of men who knew no masters but the people who sent them there."

Time Not Ripe Mr. Wefald said that this was not the opportune time for the formation of the new national party, but that progressives should be elected and that the party would come into being as a natural sequence of public thought.

He criticized President Coolidge for the vetoing of the Bursum pension bill, the postal salary wage increase and the veterans' compensation bill. Property interests, he declared, Mr. human interests he declared, Mr. Davis was declared a willing servant of the big interests and Mr. Wefald added he tried to have the United Mine Workers assessed triple fold for alleged damage in a local strike involving the Coronado Coal Company.

Special appeal was made to the women on the grounds that the LaFollette movement is one to clean up and repair.

"Cleanliness" Mr. Wefald said, "is a part of women. LaFollette's campaign in this campaign is a broom, and women know how to use a broom."

Illinois Bank is Robbed a Second Time By Same Men

Venice, Ill., Aug. 22.—The Venice State Bank was held up and robbed today for the second time within two months by four men who escaped with $5,851.66. L. H. Riley, cashier, said he recognized the robbers today as the same men who on July 7 held up the bank and escaped with $12,407.

That was the sixth bank robbery in Madison county in four months and one in a long series of recent holdups in southern Illinois. Members of the Illinois Bankers' Association had called a meeting at Edwardsville, near here, this afternoon to take drastic action to prevent further robberies.

The NERVOUS WRECK

by E. J. Rath

©1924—by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

Later Charlie McSwain, foreman of a ranch along the route, hides the Wreck's car and forces Sally to act as cook. Then they discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, was in the car which they held up. Sheriff Bob Wells, Sally's fiancé, is unwittingly searching the countryside for the "bandits" who held up Underwood. Chester Underwood, son of the owner, finds the hidden car and identifies it as being the one owned by the bandits who held them along the route. Sally, knowing how the car came to be on the ranch, but in secret asks the Wreck for an explanation. The Wreck is telling the story of the hold-up.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Suppose," continued the Wreck, as he gazed through his speculaculi, "that you happened to be stranded with your wife out in the middle of a county that's so big there isn't any sense to it. Suppose you didn't have a drop of gas. Suppose you had a car with no gas and you offered in a decent manner to pay for a few gallons if they'd let you have it. And suppose a big hog sat back in his seat and gave you the laugh and told you to get busy and push your car out of his way, so he could drive on. And suppose you had to have that gas or stay there until God knows when. Hey?"

His voice had thrilled itself to an edge and he was making gestures with both arms.

"All right," he was saying, "said Charlie, 'Well, what would you do?'"

"Speaking hypothetically, you mean?"

"Speaking any way you like," barked the Wreck.

Charlie rubbed his chin and appeared to consider the problem.

"I reckon," he drawled, "I'd try to get me some gas."

The Wreck waved an arm to indicate that all doubts were resolved.

"That's all there was to it," he said.

"Mind, now," said Charlie, cautiously, "I'm not sayin' that I'd feel drove to committin' unlawful acts. Gettin' gasoline, you might say, is meetin' one of the demands of nature, and I reckon it can be justified by powerful arguments. But when it comes to takin' people's watches and jewelry and—"

"They lied!" interrupted the Wreck. "I'm only repeatin' what was told to me."

"I say they lied."

"I guess we're showin' all hands on the call," mused Charlie.

"I'm getting tired of all this lying," said the Wreck, sliding off the table. "I can stop it in three minutes."

He was headed for the door when Sally detained him with a firm hand.

"Henry, are you crazy?"

"You stay right here. I don't care whether you're sore or not. You're not going near Mr. Underwood."

"Why doesn't he stick to the truth, then?"

"I haven't the least idea. I don't particularly care. But you keep away from him."

The Wreck shook himself loose from her grip and went back to the table. Charlie McSwain nodded his approval.

"There isn't any occasion to get excited," he said. "You might go up there and tell him he's a liar and bust him in the eye. But that wouldn't be no compensation for sittin' in jail over at the county seat, waitin' for 'em to give you the rest of your natural life."

"I'm not going to stay here for the rest of my natural life," growled the Wreck.

"Real democrats in Oklahoma will vote for Coolidge for two reasons. First, they are satisfied with the Coolidge administration. Second, they are taking no chances on Jack Walton's having an opportunity through the patronage of a democratic president to form a Walton machine should he get in as senator despite their opposition."

"In Nebraska, I heard more about LaFollette than I did about Davis. In Wyoming also the fight seems to be between Coolidge and LaFollette. In Colorado there will be a close fight between Davis and LaFollette. I anticipate, however, that Coolidge will have as many votes as both, or more. I was in Iowa but one day, but on the basis of the way republicans there talked to me yesterday I would say that Iowa republicans will vote for Coolidge. There is no such movement in that republican state for LaFollette as there was for Roosevelt in 1912. In Kansas the contest is between Coolidge and Davis, with the prospects for Coolidge, 100 per cent."

ing the kitchen work for a lot of shoddy men who are too lazy to help themselves? Yes, and doing the housework, too. I won't stand for it!"

Charlie looked interested, and so did the Wreck.

"Just because I've been good-natured about it," stormed Sally, "no reason why I'm going to let anybody rub it in. I don't care what happens. I'm through! I'm going to find out."

The Wreck was patting her on the arm.

"Ssh, now," he said. "Go easy."

She hung his hand aside and turned on him with a look of amazement.

"Henry Williams, are you a worm?"

"That's all right," he said in a voice that tried to be soothing. "You're not going to go running yourself into trouble."

"You mean to say you're going to submit?" she demanded.

"There now, you mustn't get excited," said the Wreck.

"For an instant she was without speech."

"Excited? You say that I'm excited? You? Why—why—?"

She sat in a chair and burst into hysterical laughter. The Wreck turned to Charlie and shrugged his shoulders.

Sometimes she gets a little nervous spell," he explained. "She'll be all right in a minute or two."

LA FOLLETTE PLANS RAID ON SOUTH AND EASTERN BALLOTS

Regional Headquarters to Be Established in the South.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The La Follette-Wheeler campaign managers are directing their attention to New England and the south.

Coincident with the announcement that Senator Wheeler, of Montana, vice presidential candidate, after opening the campaign with a Labor Day address in Boston, would speak in Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut, before swinging through New York state on a tour westward, comes the statement that a regional headquarters is to be established in the south. The location has not been determined.

Plans for corraling votes in all sections of the country are under discussion at conferences which got under way here yesterday. Senator La Follette and his running-mate talked over the situation yesterday with David K. Niles, acting head of the Speaker's Bureau. Attorney General Eklund, of Wisconsin, who is in charge of the solicitation of campaign funds from the public, was here today for a conference with the candidates.

Joe Fitzgerald is Killed By Train South of Mendota

Mendota, Ill.—Gruesome was the find that was made by Section Foreman Howard for the Illinois Central, who resides in this city, Thursday, as he was enroute to his work which took him south of this city on the Illinois Central right-of-way. As he reached the southern edge of the city he saw the dismembered body of a man lying beside the track and between the two rails. The legs were severed from the body and the head was badly cut up.

According to Mr. Howard, he made the discovery about 7:30 o'clock this morning. He stated that he did not know when the last train had passed over the road although he was informed that a train had gone south early this morning but the way the body was lying and the marks along the track it seemed that the man must have been struck by a north-bound train. However, that point remains in doubt.

In the pocket of the coat worn by the man was found a letter addressed to Joe Fitzgerald, Mendota, Ill., and the communication was written by his sister who resides at Lincoln, Ill. It is very evident that the man had been in Mendota as he must have gotten the letter from the local post-office on the previous day or evening. In a talk with the employees at the post office they stated that they remembered a letter being in the general delivery box for Mr. Fitzgerald but could not remember when he obtained it.

DAIRY COW HAS PROVED RIGHT TO BE ON FARM

Dairy Extension Expert at University Tells Why.

Urban, Ills., Aug. 22.—The dairy cow has proved her right to a job on Illinois farms, regardless of changes which farmers may make in their general farming practices as a result of the higher prices of farm grains, according to C. S. Rhode, dairy extension specialist of the University of Illinois.

"With better prices for farm products many farmers are apt to make the mistake of dispensing with the services of the dairy cow, Mr. Rhode said. "During the last few years there has been a tendency to adopt a system of diversified farming and in many cases the dairy cow has become a part of that system. She fits in well with the scheme.

"Through her efficiency, the farmer has marketed their farm feeds to good advantage. The monthly milk and cream checks which she has added to the farmer's bank account have helped him out of many a tight place and it would be a poor business to cut off this source of income simply because of higher prices for grains.

Instead of gradually decreasing the herd of dairy cattle, as many farmers are now doing, the better plan is to gradually improve the herd, Mr. Rhode believes. Record-keeping, with the daily production of each cow determined, will soon show where improvement can be made.

If dairy cows have become a part of the general farm practice it seems advisable to keep them on the job. This is a good time to improve the herd and build it up, instead of dispersing it. The cows that do not measure up to a paying standard should be weeded out. Good breeding should be emphasized, so that the future herd will be an improvement over the present one."

French Communist in Attack on the Dawes Plan Today

Paris, Aug. 22.—(By the Associated Press)—Communist Leader Marcel Cachin, interpellating Premier Herriot at this morning's session of the Chamber of Deputies on the London reparations accord, declared that "Dawes represents American imperialism in a most direct personal and concrete fashion. He charged that the Americans at the London international conference imposed the Dawes plan "with force and some brutality."

"The new American policy is not very disinterested," M. Cachin continued. "It has strictly an economic basis. The Americans hope to find an inflexible European market where they can impose their conditions. They must have healthy markets to which they can export, hence the Dawes plan. They have no sympathy for Europe nor for our country."

The communists alone applauded the interpellator.

HARD ROAD IS COMPLETED TO MENDOTA LINE

Starting on Pavement
Both Ways from Sublette.

Princeton—The new concrete highway north of Mendota was completed Wednesday forenoon as far as the Mendota city limits. This work was delayed for over a week on account of the rain and wet weather which has been a severe handicap to the contractors and men.

Quite a number of citizens were out to the road when the last load was dumped from the concrete mixer.

One bridge west of Mendota on the Fred Herr farm condemned after being built remains uncompleted. It was blown out with the exception of some abutments and the swollen stream on Friday night completed the work. If this bridge had been in, the contractors could have gone ahead and completed the laying of the concrete on the stretches which had been left on account of the rains having been made this spring. However it is said the Conway company promises to send an outfit just as soon as possible and complete the west road.

The Henkel Construction Company have also been unable to do much work during the wet weather as the road-bed was not dry enough for the concrete to be laid. They expect to complete the road to Mendota within a week or ten days if the weather will allow them to work.

The Conway Construction Company poured the first cement on the Chicago road, Route 2 near Dixon, Tuesday. Almost a block of cement was poured out of the big mixing machine and spread, joining the paving on the Lincoln highway. A road way has also been laid out for traffic coming off the Route 2 road on the highway which joins the east limits of that city and this is also to be poured this week.

PLAN FOR BIG ATTENDANCE AT KIWANIS MEET

Expect 1500 Visitors at Galesburg Convention.

Galesburg—Additional plans for the great Kiwanis convention for the Illinois and eastern Iowa district, to be held in Galesburg, Sept. 8, 9, 10 were discussed at a largely attended meeting of Kiwanians. Announcement was made that at least 1500 members of the organization will attend this important convocation.

Clubs from all over the district are sending word that they will present large delegations (some of them as high as 75 per cent of their membership, at the Galesburg meeting, and many of the visiting delegations will bring bands according to reports already received. The celebrated Mooseheart school band will be brought among others to Galesburg on this occasion.

According to the reports of committee heads at the meeting today the registration for the event is larger than it has ever been before and one of the best meetings in the history of the district may safely be predicted.

To Decorate Town
Plans to decorate the entire town for the convention and to stage an exceptionally fine program of stunts and entertainment as well as an extensive program of athletic events are rapidly being completed.

A great street parade in which all visiting delegations will be represented.
